MindMatch — In-Event Playbook

🎤 MindMatch — In-Event Playbook (Tomás + Marta)

> Print this AND the SHOWCASE_CHEATSHEET. This one is for during the event. Glance at section headers, don't read paragraphs.

👯 ROLE SPLIT — TOMÁS vs MARTA

You're two presenters. Don't both pitch the same thing. Divide and conquer:

	TOMÁS (extrovert, sales/marketing)	MARTA (product/strategy)
Primary role	The Greeter & Storyteller	The Demoer & Validator
Faces	The booth aisle — eye contact with passersby	The laptop — running the demo
Opens with	The 30-sec hook (see below)	Listens, jumps in on questions
Owns	Why we exist, GTM, business model, team narrative	The product itself, framework rationale, what we tested
If asked about UX	"Marta will walk you through it" → step back	Take over the laptop confidently
If asked about commercials	Take it. Pricing, business model, market	Defer to Tomás
If asked about psychology / framework	"Marta?" → defer	APA Task Force / Demonstrably Effective answer (see SHOWCASE_CHEATSHEET)

Golden rule: when one of you is talking, the other watches the visitor's face. If they look confused → tag in. If they look bored → wrap. Never both talk at once.

🎯 THE 30-SECOND HOOK (TOMÁS opens)

When someone slows down at the table, make eye contact and say:

> "Hey — quick question: have you ever thought about therapy and not started?"

90% of people will say "yes" or laugh. That's your in. Continue:

> "That's exactly why we built MindMatch. The #1 reason people don't start therapy isn't price — it's fit anxiety: 'what if I pick the wrong person?' We match you on the dimensions APA's evidence-based therapy research says actually drive outcomes, plus swap protection — if it's not the right fit in 3 sessions, your package transfers to another therapist for free. Marta, want to show them?"

→ MARTA takes the laptop and runs the demo (see below).

📲 THE 90-SECOND DEMO (MARTA runs)

Open at Onboarding (mobile view, iPhone 14 Pro). Talk while clicking:

1. (Onboarding) "This is what a new patient sees on their phone — fully installable PWA, no App Store needed."
2. (Tap → Sign Up sheet) "Standard Google login, two seconds."
3. (Home screen) "Personalized greeting. The big banner is our premium AI matching."
4. (Tap AI Match) "Five questions — what brings you to therapy, prior experience, how you want to be helped, gender preference, budget. We match on the four dimensions APA's Task Force calls Demonstrably Effective: preferences, reactance, culture, and goal alignment. Then we surface therapists who consistently embody empathy, warmth, and goal collaboration — the qualities that actually drive outcomes."
5. (Match Results) "Top 3 with compatibility %. Notice we explain why each match — therapy approach, language, availability."
6. (Open one profile) "Full transparency — bio, approach, languages, price."
7. (Book → Standard package) "Three tiers, swap protection on all of them."
8. (Checkout → Success) "Done. Booking confirmed."

Total: ~90 seconds. Then hand back to TOMÁS or open Q&A.

🎙️ TOMÁS'S "WHAT TO SAY" SCRIPTS (memorize the BOLD bits)

🟢 If they ask "What's the business model?"

> "Three streams. Primary: 20% commission on session packages — that's the bulk. Secondary: a one-time €9.99 fee for the AI matching, 95% margin. Future: a €29/month pro tier for psychologists with analytics. Break-even is 2 bookings a month — our infra is under €70/month on Supabase."

🟢 If they ask "Why Lisbon?"

> "City-by-city is how you control quality. Lisbon has 2,000 registered psychologists, growing mental-health awareness, tech-friendly population. We can reach supply through the OPP directory and demand through Portuguese SEO + Instagram. Once we hit liquidity here, Porto next."

🟢 If they ask "What about competition?"

> "No dominant player in Portugal. Doctoralia is a generic healthcare directory — they don't solve fit. We're mental-health-specific, AI-matched, with swap protection. Different category."

🟢 If they ask "Have you talked to real users?"

> "Informally — friends and family who've been in therapy. Our immediate next step is a structured study with NovaSBE Wellbeing team and Anne-Laure's network. We want to talk to both patients and psychologists to validate what the literature already shows: matching on preferences and goals, plus surfacing therapists with strong relational qualities (empathy, warmth), beats any kind of personality-similarity matching." (Don't oversell. Honest = credible.)

🟢 If they ask "Why a prototype, not the real thing?"

"We deliberately validated UX first. Three thousand lines of code, 13 screens, 56 practitioner profiles — it lets us test the full journey before sinking 6 weeks into the backend. The prototype de-risks the build."

🧠 MARTA'S "WHAT TO SAY" SCRIPTS (memorize the BOLD bits)

🔵 If they ask "What's your matching framework?" (Anne-Laure WILL ask)

"We match on the four dimensions APA's Task Force on Evidence-Based Therapy Relationships classifies as Demonstrably Effective: patient preferences, reactance, culture, and religion. Operationally: structured filters cover preferences and culture; the 5-question intake surfaces reactance and goals. Then we surface therapists who consistently embody the relational qualities the evidence shows heal — empathy, warmth, and goal collaboration — via verified post-session feedback. Goal consensus alone is 11.5% of outcome variance — the single largest common factor. Swap protection in the first 3 sessions is the behavioral safety net."

🔵 If they ask "Why not personality fit?"

"Therapist personality absolutely matters — empathy, warmth, genuineness explain about 30% of why therapy works. What doesn't have evidence is matching similar personalities together. So instead of matching personalities, we surface therapists who consistently embody the empirically-validated qualities, and we match on what APA's Task Force calls Demonstrably Effective: your preferences, how you want to be helped, culture, and goal alignment. That's a stronger signal than any personality test."

🔵 If they ask "Do users understand therapy approaches?"

"Yes — every practitioner profile explains their approach in plain language (CBT, psychodynamic, humanistic, EMDR), and the intake explicitly asks what kind of conversation style works for them. In v2 we're planning a 'Therapy Approaches 101' explainer so users can self-educate before matching."

🔵 If they ask "How do you measure success?"

"Three proxies. Swap rate in first 3 sessions — lower means better fit. Package completion rate. Post-package NPS. Long-term, we want 6-month retention as the gold standard, but that requires running for a year first."

🔵 If they ask "Is this HIPAA / GDPR compliant?"

"Built on Supabase EU region — GDPR-native. No clinical notes leave the platform; all sensitive data is encrypted at rest. We're not handling Portuguese RGPD-classified health data in v1 — only matching metadata and bookings. Clinical notes stay between patient and psychologist."

⚡ "SAVE-MY-LIFE" PHRASES (when stuck)

Situation	Say this
Don't know the answer	"Genuinely good question — we haven't pressure-tested that yet. Can I take your email and get back to you?" (then actually do it)
Visitor is hostile / pushing	"I hear you — that's a fair concern. Here's how we'd think about it: [give your best honest take]."
You contradicted Marta	"Sorry — let me clarify. Marta's right, I was simplifying. What we actually mean is…"
Visitor is rambling / won't leave	"I love that — Marta, can you grab their email so we can follow up properly?" → moves them to the signup sheet
Visitor is silent / awkward	"Want me to show you the AI matching in 30 seconds?" → into the demo
You blank on a stat	"I want to give you the right number — let me check." (don't make it up)

🎁 ALWAYS DO BEFORE THEY LEAVE

1. Get their email on the signup sheet (or QR Google Form). "We're launching in Lisbon in [timeframe] — early access list?"
2. Ask what they do. "What do you do?" — every conversation = a potential connection (psychologist? patient? investor? journalist? designer?)
3. Tag interesting visitors. Quick note next to their email: "psychologist", "investor curious", "wants to test", etc.
4. Smile and thank them. Energy is contagious. Even bad conversations end well if you're warm.

🚦 TIMING / ENERGY MANAGEMENT (2-person teams burn out fast)

- Every 30 min: one of you steps away for 3 min (water, walk, breathe). The other holds the booth.
- No phones in pockets-out mode unless showing the demo or QR. Phones = "I'm bored" body language.
- Stand, don't sit. Always.
- One hand free. Don't hold a coffee + the laptop + a brochure all at once.

🎯 SUCCESS METRICS FOR TODAY

By end of showcase, you want:

- ✅ 20+ emails on the waitlist (paper + digital combined)
- ✅ 3+ psychologist contacts (potential supply-side)
- ✅ Anne-Laure walks away nodding — she gave the feedback, she'll recognize it addressed
- ✅ One memorable interaction — a journalist, an investor, a future advisor, or a real-life Maria persona

If you hit 3/4 → home run.

🆘 EMERGENCY DEBRIEF (right after)

Within 2 hours of leaving, the two of you sit down with coffee and write:

1. Top 3 questions you got asked → those are your gaps
2. Top 3 pieces of negative feedback → those are your roadmap
3. Top 3 emails to follow up on → send within 24h or they go cold

Then sleep. You've earned it.
